Seeing Redd by Frank Beddor is the thrilling sequel to The Looking Glass Wars. Alyss has taken over Wonderland and has been making it a better place for her people since "White Imagination" was reinstated and "Black Imagination" was once again frowned upon. Since Alyss' reign began she has been making several improvements to her beloved Wonderland. She has rebuilt some of the marvelous crystal buildings that had stood and been destroyed by Redd during her reign. After Redd's defeat, Alyss has always had the feeling that Redd (her evil aunt who was sent into exile because of her wicked ways by her parents) was still out there somewhere, maybe not in Alyss' dimension but in another in the form she had previously owned or in another shape such as a spirit. Alyss knew that the battle wasn't over yet. Later Wonderland is under attack; King Arch (the scheming idiot!!!) had visited Wondertropolis the previous day and had left an implied threat in the words that he had spoken to Queen Alyss. During the attack barrels and barrels of glass eyes swarmed Wondertropolis (glass eyes are an invention of Redd Heart) but Redd was nowhere in sight, not even in Queen Alyss' imagination eye. Was it King Arch who sent the attack on the wonderful city of Wondertropolis or was it the dreaded Aunt Redd. Read Seeing Redd to find out who this nasty person is!!!
